

DAEMON — Website Sitemap

Brand source: Brand_Naming_Report.pdf (v1.0). Positioning: civilizational intelligence infrastructure. Frontier AGI company. Peer tier: Anthropic, Palantir, Apple. Tagline: Intelligence Beyond Instruction. Master line: Daemion builds cognition systems for the next industrial civilization.

Audience: sovereign institutions, frontier-tech operators, enterprise CTOs, strategic investors, AGI researchers, deep-tech recruits.

Primary goal of the site: establish institutional authority and signal seriousness. Convert qualified inbound from sovereign / enterprise / research / capital partners into a direct conversation. No self-serve checkout. No demo widget. Sales-led, prestige-driven.

Anti-goals: - No buzzwords ("AI revolution," "disruption," "magic," "creative buddy," "friendly AI"). - No bright colors. No chatbot imagery. No stock illustrations of brains-with-circuits. - No price tags on the public surface. Pricing is institutional and conversation-driven.

Content principles

- Restrained > expressive. One declarative sentence carries more weight than a paragraph of marketing.
- Inevitability > enthusiasm. Daemion does not sell. It announces.
- Architecture > anecdote. Position by structure (divisions, products, labs, phases) — not by stories.
- Confidence without proof. This is a frontier lab; institutional authority comes from the seriousness of the framing, not from logos or testimonials.
- Visual silence. Black, graphite, off-white. Geometric serif/sans hybrid headlines. Ultra-thin body text. No emoji. No icons except minimal geometric marks.
- Mobile-aware, but desktop-first. This audience reads on desktops with high-DPI displays. Mobile must be flawless but is not the primary surface.

Forbidden words and patterns

Source: brand report, §6 "Design & Cultural Positioning" and §8 "Final Brand Feel."

Never use: AI revolution, disrupt, disruption, magic, magical, friendly AI, AI for everyone, creative buddy, assistant, chatbot, supercharge, unlock, leverage, journey, ecosystem, holistic, robust, powerful, intelligent, seamless, intuitive, game-changing, next-generation, cutting-edge.

Speak instead of: cognition, systems, alignment, coordination, infrastructure, autonomy, intelligence architecture, reasoning, long-horizon planning, machine agency, operational intelligence.

Voice rules: - Present tense, third person ("Daemion builds...", "Merqis coordinates..."). - One thought per sentence. - No exclamation marks. Anywhere. - No "we" except in the Company section. - No questions in headlines. - Numerals over spelled-out numbers ("4 divisions" not "four divisions").

Open Graph (per page): - `og:type` — `website` for /, `article` for /research and /labs, `profile` for /company. - `og:image` — monochrome 1200×630 wordmark on graphite. One canonical image; per-page variants only if visual differentiation justifies it. - `og:title` and `og:description` mirror the SEO title/description above.

Structured data: - / and /company — `Organization` schema (name, url, logo, sameAs, address). - /contact and /company — `LocalBusiness` schema (Dhaka address, geo, openingHours). - /products — `Product` schema per product (Eidolon, Kheiron, Merqis, Aevum). - `/research` — `ScholarlyArticle` collection wrapper if publications listed. - `/careers` — `JobPosting` schema per role.

Technical SEO: - `sitemap.xml` generated from the page tree above. - `robots.txt` allows all crawling; disallows nothing on the public site (Veil's content is server-rendered minimal — no hidden routes to protect). - Canonical URLs absolute, no trailing slash. - `hreflang` strategy deferred. The audience is global and English-first; Bangla translation, if pursued, is a long-term editorial decision rather than an immediate launch requirement. - Page weight target: under 200 KB per page (HTML + CSS + critical assets). No third-party tracking on public marketing surface.

Voice + tone

See `brand/voice.md` for the full guide. Quick rules:

- Daemion announces. It does not sell. Headlines are statements, not questions.
- Architecture frames everything. Mention the division or the product, not the use case.
- Trust comes from gravity, not from numbers. No customer-count, no funding total, no quotes from "happy customers."
- Bangladesh is location, not theme. Dhaka is the headquarters. It is mentioned in the company section, the contact section, and the footer. It is not a brand value or a positioning lever.

Build order

1. Home + Company + Contact — minimum institutional surface (Week 1)
2. Divisions + Products + Research — establish the architecture (Week 1-2)
3. Labs + Careers — depth and recruitment (Week 2-3)
4. Legal pages — drafted and aligned to the institutional positioning (Week 2 for final lawyer review)
5. Visual implementation — monochrome design system, typography selection, motion guidelines (parallel track, Week 1-4)

Decisions deferred (require founder input before publish)

- Final Dhaka office address.
- Founder names + bios for `/company` and `/careers` .
- Confirmation of which divisions/products/labs are public-facing at launch vs. announced-later.
- Whether `/veil` exists at all on the public site, or whether classified-systems work is silent.
- Whether to publish a research paper backlog at launch or wait for the first internal paper.
- Whether any prior product work (predating this brand positioning) is being retired, folded into one of the four Daemion products (most plausibly Merqis), or split off as a separately-named brand.

The last item is a strategic decision that does not affect this site. This site assumes Daemion is the frontier intelligence parent brand only; any prior or sibling product is treated as out of scope until a positioning decision is made.
